ECUPL

Founded in 1952, East China University of Political Science and Law (“ECUPL”) is among the first group of universities of politics and law established by the People’s Republic of China. The university has two campuses which are located in Changning District and Songjiang District respectively, covering an area of more than 1,300 mu (214 acres), and about 20,000 students. And with more than 1,400 faculty and staff members, the university has 15 schools and departments. It has 22 undergraduate programs, 20 master’s programs, 10 Ph.D. programs, and a post-doctoral mobile station. During the past sixty years, ECUPL has developed into a multidisciplinary university that, while focusing on legal education, offers a variety of other disciplines such as political science, economics, management, humanities and computer science. With an international reputation as “The Oriental Pearl in legal education,” the University has been admitting international students since 1984. The International Cultural Exchange School of ECUPL is in charge of the admission, education, and administration of international students, as well as cultural and educational exchange activities with other countries and institutions.

■ Shanghai

ECUPL is located in Shanghai in the business district of Zhongshan Park, near the interchange of the subway system known as the “Metro.” Shanghai is an international financial, trade, and shipping center and a leading city in the global economy. Shanghai has superb public transportation, historical and contemporary arts, entertainment, restaurants, and prosperous businesses. Its world famous cityscape is characterized by stunning skyscrapers and luxurious high-rise apartments. Yet, there is some of Old China present in this futuristic metropolis. It is not surprising that this magnificent city enjoys the reputation as the “Pearl of the Orient”.

■ PROGRAM OVERVIEW

History

ECUPL has a long history of joint legal programs with American universities. It has operated a program with Willamette University on the Chinese Law Program in English since 1984. The Chinese Law Program admits students from law schools in the United States, and the credits completed by participants during the program are recognized by the American Bar Association. The University has similar programs operated in conjunction with the University of Sydney and the University of Leeds. ECUPL's distinguished faculty have extensive teaching and research experience. The Chinese Law Program helps international students overcome the language barrier they face when studying in China, while at the same time meets the increasing demands of international students for Chinese legal education.

Goal of the Program

The program awards a Master's degree in law and is intended for non-Chinese citizens committed to a legal career in the fields of international investment, international trade, or relevant Chinese law. To promote students' abilities in dealing with legal issues concerning trade and investment in or with China, the primary focus of the program is on international law, the economic law of China, and Chinese legal practice. Students in the program have numerous internship opportunities during the program. After graduation, students can enter into legal practice involving China and international trade, or choose to apply for a doctoral degree in law.

MERTENOVA YENLIK

Graduate of LL.M. Program, ECUPL (2012)

Working at Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Republic of Kazakhstan

China -- it's an amazing country with beautiful and developed cities and metropolitan areas. One of these cities for me is Shanghai – I'm struck by its splendor, variety, multiethnic and rich culture. This city is fascinating. In this city I live, learn, and meet many interesting people. Here I have many friends from all over the world. Working in an office on the 32nd floor during my internship time, from my window I could see the entire city, about which I can justifiably say that I found myself immersed in it and I succumbed to "Shanghai's charms."

Prestigious East China University of Political Science and Law is the whole universe for me, and a special part of my life education that gave me not only knowledge from excellent teachers but also wonderful friends. The University gave me a sense of freedom, strength and confidence. As the great Kazakh poet, philosopher and founder of Kazakh written literature Abai said: "Only intellect, science, will, and conscience elevate the human."
